Anti-Poverty Work

The “Heart” of Who We Are

We Are All In This Together

Community Action Agencies labor daily to dismantle the barriers that stand in the way of opportunity and economic security for America's families and communities.

Look to the North Star

- As a network, Community Action Agencies know what it is like navigate complex realities in the face of adversity. In the early 1960's though our network was born amidst various social tensions, we learned to look towards the North Star as we sought the path of opportunity and stability for our families and communities who were being held captive by poverty.

Today may the notion of the "North Star" still inspire us to collectively look in the right direction towards the path of opportunity and towards a thriving reality for everyone in our communities...

We Care About the Entire Community

As the Community Action Network aims to effectively eradicate the causes and conditions of poverty, we understand that racial inequity is one of those causes of poverty that rests at the intersection of multiple barriers that impede access to economic security for children, families and communities.

What is TRHT?

- The W.K. Kellogg Foundation-led Truth, Racial Healing & Transformation (TRHT) enterprise is a national and community-based process to engage communities across the U.S. in racial healing and change efforts.

What is TRHT?

- It seeks to respond to the ways racism has affected our ability to know, relate to and value one another and to address our biggest challenges so that all children and families have opportunities to thrive.
- TRHT is a comprehensive effort, implemented community-by-community, to plan for and bring about transformational and sustainable change, addressing the historic and contemporary effects of racism.

What is TRHT?

- These effects of racism are evident in the social, economic and public policies all around us and the places in which we live, learn, work and play. People experience these effects – either positively or negatively – when they take their children to school, when they apply for jobs, when they visit a doctor, when they try to rent or buy a home, when they shop, when they interact with the police and more.

What is TRHT?

- TRHT seeks to unearth and eliminate the deeply held, and often unconscious, beliefs created by racism – a main one being what WKKF calls a “hierarchy of human value.”
- This is when we value one person more than another based on skin color or other physical, superficial characteristics and let those values affect the decisions we make each day in areas like policymaking, in job decisions, in how we teach children.
